Mount Sinai Medical Center was established in 1949 by a group of philanthropists and concerned citizens with two goals in mind: to make healthcare services readily available to all people, regardless of race, color or creed, or their ability to pay, and to create a hospital where physicians would be allowed to practice medicine without fear of discrimination. Fifty-seven years later, with more than 800 physicians, 952 licensed beds, 3,000 employees and 500 volunteers, Mount Sinai is South Florida's largest, private, independent, and not-for-profit teaching hospital. Mount Sinai Medical Center is the largest employer in Miami Beach.

Named one of "America's Best Hospitals" in geriatric care by U.S. News and World Reports, Mount Sinai Medical Center has leading-edge technology, remarkable facilities, highly skilled professionals and matchless scenery.
